

February 7, 2024

President Joseph R. Biden
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave.
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear President Biden:

As corn growers from across the country, we write regarding our concern that your administration may be overlooking the benefits of biofuels as it rushes to embrace electric vehicles as a sole means of decarbonizing light and medium-duty vehicles as part of the tailpipe emissions standards for 2027-2032 and the recent CAFE standard proposal under NHTSA. We fear this approach could significantly limit your administration's ability to immediately lower greenhouse gas emissions and put the nation on a climate-smart path.

While the use of electric vehicles is one tool in the nation's toolkit for fighting climate change, consumers are not readily adopting this technology. A recent survey, sponsored by the National Corn Growers Association and conducted by Morning Consult, showed that Americans have concerns on a range of issues involving electric vehicles, including the accessibility of charging stations, and that an overwhelming majority say vehicles that are compatible with biofuels should remain available to consumers.

These survey results support what we're seeing at car dealerships across the country where EV sales are slowing and electric cars are sitting on lots longer than their non-electric counterparts. Dealers are echoing what respondents told us in the survey: The expense of electric vehicles and the challenges of keeping them moving are impediments to sales. Negative news coverage highlighting the weaknesses of EVs, such as the recent articles about charging difficulties and delays during extreme cold spells, only exacerbates these perceptions.

One must only look at California, one of the most prominent states in the push to adopt EVs, to see that these problems are not likely to change overnight. The state has spent years at the forefront of the transition to EVs, spending enormous political capital and billions of dollars to encourage its citizens to embrace these vehicles. Yet, by the end of 2022, only 2.6 percent of the state's light-duty vehicles were electrified.

If we are going to address climate change and meet our climate goals, we are going to have to take a multi-pronged approach that includes tapping into higher levels of biofuels, such as corn ethanol, which offers an immediate climate solution.

As a low-carbon, clean energy source and an affordable, homegrown fuel, ethanol serves as a critical pathway for agriculture and rural America to contribute to a sustainable future. We hope you will join us in fully embracing this technology as we all do our best to fight the causes and effects of climate change.

Sincerely,
